PRAYER FOR RACIAL JUSTICE

Ever-Creating God,

In these times, it might be easier to despair. Each day's news offers ample reason.

Too often we see and experience the destruction of your world. The promise of abundant life for all is a distant vision.

Free us from passive acceptance of this news. Make us actors with you in seeking your justice and love.

Open our eyes to our complicity in unjust structures and racial inequity.

Open our eyes to the system that deepen the gulfs among us.

Open our eyes to ways we wound the image of you in ourselves and neglect your image in one another.

Help us love each other, not only for what we have in common, but also for how we are different.

Help us see new ways of being and living in your world. Make us brave.

For you are a God of hope, who makes all things new,
again and yet again!

You are the God who created us and the world and called it good.

Return us to your original blessing, where differences among us are occasions of celebration, beauty, and hope.

Transform us and give us courage to work toward abundance for all.

May these prayers be the expression of our public voice, a word to declare that we are not bound by this original sin of racism but by the blessing of a Creator whose love ever reforms us and sends us forth with power and hope for a world made new. Amen

Rev. Margaret R Rose
Presiding Bishop's Deputy for Ecumenical and Inter-Religious Relations
The Episcopal Church

O GOD OF PEACE and HEALING

O God of peace and healing,

We come before you feeling powerless to stop the hatred that divides races and nations.

We come before you saddened and angered by the denial of human rights in our land.

We come before you with wounds deep in our hearts that we long to have healed.

We come before you with struggles in our personal lives that it seems will not go away.

And we pray Lord, How long?

How long to peace?

And we hear, “Not long, because the arc of the moral universe is long, but it bends toward justice.”

How long for racial justice? “Not long, because no lie can live forever.”

How long for our wounded hearts? Not long, I call you by name, you are with me; you are mine

How long for our struggles? Not long, for my grace is sufficient. I hold you in my everlasting arms beneath which you cannot fall.

How long for the healing of what is broken inside and all around us? Not long, for we shall overcome, together in partnership, human holy partnership, we shall overcome. Amen

(Citations in quotation marks are from Martin Luther King, Jr.'s speech, "Our God Is Marching On," before the state capitol in Montgomery, Alabama, March 25, 1963.)

God,
Grant me justice,
so that I may treat others as they deserve,
Grant me mercy,
so that I don't treat others as they deserve.
Grant me a humble walk with you,
so that I may understand the difference.
